Teaching beautiful writing to primary school students is the foundation of literacy. Develop oral and written speech of Primary School students, educate them as mature people in every way, further improvement of the methods and ways to develop their beautiful writing skills by teaching a complex process, such as writing to students of small age, adult education as a schoolboy who aspires to beauty, who can feel it from the heart, who seeks to create beauty, the main goal of all primary school teachers is the formation of beautiful, on-demand, uniform writing skills of the husnixat of Primary School students of all secondary schools in the Republic.

In fact, a primary school teacher should be a teacher who knows his profession in depth, who constantly works on himself, finds a way out, constantly enriches his methods, loves children, is able to put them in place of his own children. Only then in the pedagogical quote; all the child will master if he was born and grew up healthy. There will not be a child who will not be mastered," we are sure of the correctness of the transplant.

The formation of the child's maturity depends in many ways on the beautiful writing. Students will have the opportunity to successfully master other disciplines by writing beautifully.¹

In the life of a person, writing plays an important role, because it uses a variety of papers and documents every day. All this is necessary to write beautifully and without errors. In order to teach beautiful writing, We must perform the task with the help of an improved methodology, carrying out consistent, perfect exercises from the day of the step to the school with the child.

If the teacher makes a single mistake, the husniness and writing skills of the student are not formed at the required level.

In order to teach beautiful writing to primary school students, both organizational and meaningful requirements will have to be met equally. Since most of the time the student has passed in the classroom, it is important that the class room, parta, classroom whiteboard, tambourine, backpacks are organized in accordance with hygienic and pedagogical requirements, meaning that each letter, it is required to correctly connect and write the elements of letters, keep the distance between them the same, improve the methodology of teaching all students in the class to write smoothly at the same speed.

Life itself proves that primary education is not only the foundation of education, but also the foundation of primary education – the perfection of personality. It is the main and important work of the child to properly conduct his activities in the primary class, to form beautiful writing skills, to bring out the literacy of the student. It is known that in the formation of a human personality, childhood years, especially the period of junior school age, are important. This is the period when the child at this age is curious about everything, in love with learning to ask everything.

"The writing of a person is a key factor in determining his interest and psychology," says the author. Therefore, writing is important in the written statement of the excellent oral speech of the readers.

A system of written signs or images in which writing is accepted in a particular language and serves as a communication between people. ²

In fact, writing is an important tool in the interaction of people, in the exchange of views, bringing the experience of personality from generation to generation. For the existence of writing, We will be able to observe the historical progress of our language, learn the heritage of our ancestors left to future generations, and teach them in comparison with the current stage of our language.

In the release of primary schoolchildren's literacy, the formation of reading and writing skills, the child spends all his strength, physical and mental capabilities. Well-known Uzbek methodist M. Gulomov told the students that the exercises that are performed in the course of the lesson are easy to do, take less time, increase their physical, it is necessary to help the muscles of the hands to perfect and keep the buttocks straight, free. At the lessons of writing (after 10-15 minutes) students become carefree, they lie on their backs or on their sides, stand up from their seats, this means that they are tired," he said. ³

In fact, in the 1st class, the organization of writing exercises is somewhat complicated, students listen to the teacher's word, look at the letters and words they write, copy and write some, paint over the letters expressed in points. At certain times, before you start teaching students how to write beautifully, it is necessary to understand the rules of sitting correctly, go to the middle of the lesson and remember this rule from them, so that the teacher reminds the students of the rules of sitting correctly.

Writing is important in the written statement of the oral speech of the readers. Therefore, the writing of the readers is the main factor in determining his interest and psychology.

Thus, in the lessons of beautiful writing, writing words, sentences, texts, checking their spelling will gradually lead to the formation of orthographic awareness, creating the basis for their thorough mastering of the rules of spelling.
